Présentation de l'éditeur

This existential vacuum is the psychological landscape that Gross presents in Future Tense (2014). A lengthy parade of characters lost in their cell phones, iPads and computers find themselves in worlds of neon-lit supermarkets, billboard infested metropolises, and naturalistic countryside panoramas. Most of his characters appear bored and distracted. His work exposes the result of corporate-dictated mass culture and our inability to be present and interact with the real world. Alex Gross' paintings remind us, that it is impossible to escape consumerism's domination.
